Full description

Claudio played a leading role in the reconstruction of Ahu Tongariki between 1992 and 1996, one of the most significant restoration projects in Rapa Nui. His contribution extended beyond the reconstruction itself: he also undertook dedicated research at Rano Raraku, studying the moai quarries, their sculptural processes and the traces left by the ancient carvers. This work provided a deeper understanding of the island's monumental heritage and gives his account a rare perspective: that of someone who has helped both uncover its history and bring an important part of it back to life.
